

Cad & The Dandy

Established in 2008 by Ian Meiers and James Sleater, who met through their families connections in the couturier business, the company has grown to become Savile Row's largest in just 15 years with four shops across the world in New York and Stockholm as well as its London home at both 7-8 Savile Row (Ready to Wear) and 13 Savile Row (Bespoke).

All tailored garments are made in-house and retain the intricacies of traditional English handwork blended with a sleek fusion of modern style, slimmer shoulder padding and a more pronounced waist, creating a look that is both contemporary and unique to the house.

Find out more here: <https://www.cadandthedandy.co.uk/>

Norton & Sons

Established on London's Strand in 1821 by English tailor Walter Norton who built a thriving business in the City of London. Walter's son James Norton joined the firm and in 1859 was granted the Freedom of the City of London in recognition of his services to tailoring. In the 1860's Norton & Sons moved to Mayfair, join the swelling ranks of Savile Row tailors.

Norton & Sons developed an expertise in lightweight clothing for customers bound for Africa and the East; Lord Carnarvon was wearing a Norton & Sons suit when he opened Tutankhamen's tomb. Their contemporary lightweight unstructured tailing continues this tradition.

Find out more here: <https://www.nortonandsons.co.uk/>